

no shame. no blame. no names.
Safely Surrendered Baby Campaign

:60 Radio Public Service Announcement

- Martha: Every baby deserves a chance for a healthy life.
- Mary: That's why California has a way to protect infants from the dangers of being abandoned. It's called the Safely Surrendered Baby Law, and it's already working.
- Martha: On July 25, 2002, a healthy newborn baby was brought to St. Bernardine Medical Center in San Bernardino.
- Mary: This baby was the eighteenth child protected under California's Safely Surrendered Baby Law.
- Martha: No shame.
- Mary: The baby's mother did not have to identify herself.
- Martha: No blame.
- Mary: She was allowed to give up custody safely, legally, and confidentially.
- Martha: No names.
- Mary: If you or someone you know is thinking about giving up a child, remember: a baby can be safely surrendered at any hospital emergency room or other designated safe haven in California. And no names are required.
- Martha: And the baby from St. Bernardine? He's OK. His foster parents are taking good care of him. And someday soon, he'll be adopted.
- Mary: Every baby deserves a chance for a healthy life.